

Press Freedom Quiz

© 2018 Student Press Law Center

Right to reproduce for classroom use with attribution to "Student Press Law Center" granted

1. The First Amendment provides no protection from censorship by private school officials.

True

False

2. The First Amendment only protects the speech of individuals 18 years old and above.

True

False

3. State and local government officials (for example, a school board) can pass laws or policies that provide students with more free speech protection than that provided by the First Amendment.

True

False

4. Because they own the student newspaper, principals and other school officials have the same right to control the paper's editorial content as any other publisher.

True

False

5. Public high school officials do not have the right to ban distribution of underground or independent student newspapers on campus that contain no unlawful content (obscenity, libel, substantially disruptive, etc.).

True

False

6. The Supreme Court's 1988 decision in Hazelwood v. Kuhlmeier requires school officials to censor material if they have a reasonable educational justification for doing so (or in the exact words of the Court, a reason that is "reasonably related to a legitimate pedagogical concern").

True

False

7. The First Amendment significantly limits the authority of public school officials to punish students who publish private, off-campus websites even if the sites harshly or unfairly criticize school district policies or administrators.

True
False

8. The Hazelwood standard — which allows school officials to censor student media if they have a reasonable educational justification for doing so — applies to all school-sponsored media.

True
False

9. The Supreme Court’s decision in Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District, which allows school officials to censor student expression that creates a “material and substantial disruption” of school activities, prohibits discussion in student media of abortion, race, politics and other “heated” topics that may spark controversy on campus.

True
False

10. Religious topics can be discussed in student-edited media at a public school.

True
False

“Test Your Knowledge of the First Amendment” was developed by the Student Press Law Center with a grant in 2005 from the Newspaper Association of America Foundation (now known as the News Media Alliance, newsmediaalliance.org). SPLC staff periodically review and update the quizzes.

